

What Women Want - An Insider Into The Mind Of A Woman

A secret women know but men don't! Let me tell you a story that may seem irrelevant to you. It, however, will help you to understand what it is that the women know but the men hardly know. A man meets a girl and he finds her very attractive. The man succeeds to build up a friendship with the girl and the girl also feels quite comfortable with the man. It is quite evident that she likes the man very much. You can even presume from the behavior of the girl that she is, in no way willing to sever the relationship with the man. Yet, when the man thinks that it is the time for him to convey his feelings of love to the girl, he hesitates much and states everything to the girl with a makeshift bravery. The girl then starts avoiding the boy ending up in severing all kinds of relationship with the boy. You must be, by now, trying to find out why the girl left the company of the man even though she seemed to be reluctant to lose the company of the man. This is the secret that the women know but the men do not know. The man and the girl became good friends, as most boys and girls or men and women do. The girls or the women have a sense within them that helps them to be in perfect pace with the situations. They never feel too insecure of almost everything, which the men feel. When the friendship grows up, the girls or the women treat the men or the boys as they are to themselves. They seldom try to make the men or the boys feel the way they are feeling. On the other hand, the men or the boys always feel insecure about the girl or the woman, thinking that it is time to convey his feelings of love and attraction to the girl or the woman whom he wants to date. Herein he makes a mess. He either loses his charms that he very spontaneously has. He keeps pondering over what and how to say that he is in love with her. In the meantime, the girl or the woman can well feel the uneasy atmosphere that the man or the boy is creating. She knows very well that she has lost the man who was very interesting and colorful by nature. In stead of getting attracted to the man, she would feel repulsive to the man. The fact remains that the men or the boys feel insecure when they find their women or girls behaving with them like friends and not like 'partners'. On the other hand the women feel nearly disgusted or irritated at the outburst of emotions in men. If you do not want your girl or your woman not to leave you, be what you are and do not try to make her feel the way you feel. Let her feel and think in her way. That is the way she can know you and like you better.
