An important key to a fast loading web site is the use of minimum number of images. Though images may improve a page make sure that your web site is not just images as this can increase the loading time. Logo design is an essential area of graphic design, and one of the most complicated to perfect. The logo is the image embodying an association. Because logos are predestined to represent companies' brands or corporate identities and foster their immediate consumer acknowledgment, it is counterproductive to regularly redesign logos. Avoid going overboard in attempting uniqueness use a small amount of colors, limited colors, spot colors, produce alternatives for dissimilar contexts and design using vector graphics, so the logo can be resized without loss of dependability to be aware of design or trade name infringements include guidelines on the position on a page and white space around the logo for reliable application across a variety of media not use a specific choice clip-art as a distinguishing feature and not use photography or complex imagery as it reduces the instant recognition a logo demands.

The objective of web design is to create a web site that presents content to the end user in the form of web pages once requested. A web banner or banner ad is a form of promotion on the World Wide Web. This form of online promotion entails embedding an announcement into a web page. It is proposed to attract traffic to a website by linking them to the web site of the advertiser. The advertisement is constructed from an image program or multimedia object employing technologies such as Silver light or Flash, often employing animation or sound to maximize occurrence. Images are usually in a high-aspect ratio shape hence the reference to banners. These images are usually placed on web pages that have interesting content, such as a newspaper article or an opinion piece. Web banners function the same way as long-established advertisements are planned to function: notifying customers of the product or service and presenting reasons why the consumer should choose the produce in question, although web banners differ in that the results for personal ad campaigns may be monitored concurrent and may be targeted to the viewer's interests.
