

An Eccentric Dating Story

I'm not a regular dater, and in fact, the last time I dated someone was about 5 years ago. But, I wanna get back to the dating scene again as I'm kinda tired being a single. I mean almost all of my close friends are already enjoying their life with great girls. They're pretty good looking. Each of them has also sent me on a blind date with one or two of their friends, but sadly, it hasn't really worked out for me. Maybe, because I'm kind of superanalytical guy and I seem have a obsessive compulsive in me somewhere. But, I don't think its too bad a reason to drive the women away from me, eh? Well, I'm dating girl tonight whom I have never met before. It sure sounds funny but I'm a little excited about it. Actually she was dating a guy I went to school with back in the day. But they broke up and I can say she probably liked me. Well, I will fast forward a bit here. I was getting ready for the date and I felt like express myself so I'm writing this blog. I'm dating after a long time and I am bit anxious. This shot has to click cuz I want to find someone I can say I'm dating and going steady with. I'm really sick of being the third leg when my friends and I go out. So, please wish me luck everyone. Its 10 after 7 and I need to go pick her up at her place. Update: ok, well, it's been a month, and guess what?!? The date went well and we are actually dating! We had a lot to talk about; hr last relationship, my disability to not have a girlfriend, ha ha, we had a riot! I'm glad it all worked out, dating is a great time. And plus! My friends cant bug me about not dating anyone anymore!
