

Are You On Free Dating Sites on The Quest of Love?

I hardly had any clue about online dating or free online dating sites until my bro told me about it. He was probably on a free dating site. Well, I don't have any idea about how to use a computer, leave alone the Internet. So I never really knew if free dating sites existed until I heard about it from a couple of people. But seriously, I really don't know how free dating sites work. All I know is how to type and blogs. However, we don't want to enter complex computer numbers. My brother apparently got tired of the lame dates and eventually, resorted to this free dating site. I guess he had heard about the dating site from ad or something. I'll fast forward a bit here, a week has passed since all this happened and guess what, he has got a date. He found this girl on the free dating site. He even showed me her pictures- she looks really smart and maybe, works in a café. Anyways, he'd got this hot date and I'm all gassed up now. I hate being single now and I guess I'd jump into a free online dating site now. In fact, my bro has hooked me up with an account and now, I'm enjoying being a member of this free online dating site. I'm at work now and I'm looking through the profiles of other members. They are pretty awesome. There is this girl I think I should date. I guess I'm gonna ask my bro to help send her a message to see if she's really interested. This free dating thing isn't too bad, I think I like it to be honest. Tell me one thing, is being too open on a free dating site okay?
